HURLED INTO ETERNITY.

A DEFECTIVE BRIDGE CAUSES A

anger Train on the Bos on and Providence Bailroad Shattered to Splinters-Thirty-three Persons Killed and Twice) that Number Wounded-Scenes at the Wreck.

BOSTON, Mass., March 14-A heavily loaded passenger train on the Boston and Providence railroad met with a terrible accident at seven o'clock this morning, between Roslindale and Forestville. Five cars fell through a bridge. Thirty-three persons were killed. The bridge is comparatively a new one and the accident was caused by a truck of one of the cars giving away, causing the car to strike against an abutment of the bridge. The smoking car, after it fell, caught fire, but the fire department was promptly on hand and prevented any spread of the flames.

The bediesof the dead have all been removed and some of the wounded are at hospitals and seme have been taken home."

The train was crowded with working people, and most intense excitement prevails among their friends, who are anxious to learn the names of those killed and injured. A. Webster Clapp died in Forest Hill station where he had been taken. The engineer, when his engine broke from the train, kept right on to Forest Hill and gave the alarm instead of stopping to ascertain the extent of the accident, and on that account it was impossible to get any assistance at once. Officers of the road are present, and are doing all they can. Many doctors are doing everything in their power. The bodies of the killed were horribly mangled, some heads being entirely severed from the bedies and many bodies crushed beyond recognition.

The accident occurred on the Dedham branch of the Boston and Providence railroad, between Forest Hill and Roslindale, at what is known as Bussey park bridge. The seven o'clock train from Dedham, consisting of seven cars and a baggage car, under charge of Conductor Tilden, broke through the bridge. The engine and three ears went over safely, but the five to the road beneath, a distance of thirty feet The last car, which was the smoker, turned completely over and struck on top the others, all being crushed almost out of shape. The cause of the accident is said to have been the breaking of the bridge.

Twenty seven dead bodies have been identified. There are at the morgue the bodies of three men and two women which as yet remain unidentified.

The scene of the accident is about a mile from Jamaica Plain, where the main line of the Boston and Providence railroad branches off to the left to Rendville and Providence, while to the right runs, in a sweeping curve, the Dedham branch. This arm is built through a valley, and the embankment for a long distance is a high one. South street, which leaves Newton street near Buzzey woods, runs diagonally to the track of the branch, and it was into this ent that the cars of the train plunged from the bridge which crossed it. It has been stated that owing to the peculiar arrangement of the abutment of the bridge it was really weakest on the concave side of the curve, where the heaviest strain was experienced.

ALL OFF BUT THE ENGINE.

The train was a local one, heavily laden with people, a majority of whom work in Boston and live in suburban villages. It was composed of seven passenger and one baggage car and engine. The engine and three cars passed safely over the bridge, but when the fourth car went down it drew back the three which ad crossed the bridge and which broke loose from the engine, thus leaving the engine alone standing in safety upon the track. The engineer immediately ran his engine to the nearest station and telegraphed the news to the railroad officials. Messengers summoning surgical assistance were sent out on horseback, surgeons were at once in attendance and the injured passengers received prompt attention.

In the meantime a force of men set te work to relieve those who were pinned under the wreck, and a wrecking train was made up, and at once sent to the scene. One hundred and fifty mattresses were obtained at the city hospital and sent to the scene of the accident by a special train, which also carried a large numbor of surgeons.

The bridge evidently gave way when the fourth car was passing over it. The five rear cars went though to the roadway, landing in a mass of splinters in the street. The strain of the five falling cars pulled the three cars in advance from the rail. They remained on top the of embankment, but were pulled off their trucks and the floor of each was forced nearly to the roof, while

SEATS WERE JUMBLED TOGETHER in great confusion. The end of the second coach was a mass of splinters, caused by a car head grinding against it when the others went down the embankment.

The third coach was flattened to the ground as if it had fallen on its trucks from a great height, although it remained on the edge of the embankment. The roof of the fourth car also remained on the embankment, having evidently been torn clear from its fastenings where the coach went through. The next four cars went down in a heap, the smoker, which was on the rear of the train, falling in the midst of the coaches and being

ACTUALLY GROUND INTO SPLINTERS. The inmates of the smoker were all either killed or injured, not one escaping without injury of some kind. Two of the coaches went clear across the roadway, landing against a stone wall that bounded a large field at the foot of the hill. As the cars lie in their present location, they present a picture of such absolute demolition that it seems remarkable that any person in them escaped alive. That the horrors of fire were not added to the terrible disaster, was due to the promptness with which relief was sent. A chemical engine from Roslindale was at the scene within twenty minutes after the wreck occurred brought by a letter carrier, who gave an alarm of fire upon observing the flames issuing from the debris. The flames were soon extinguished, and the firemen then did excellent work in rescuing the injured. The stoves in all the cars were securely fastened to the floors by iron bolts, and the doors of the stoves were locked. In only one car did the stoves upset, although in one instance a stove was smashed clear through the roof of the car in which it

THE WORK OF RESCUERS. The only person known to have been an eyewitness of the disaster, who was not on the train, was J. H. Lennon, a fish dealer, whose stable was on a hill just above the bridge. Lennon was harnessing his team when the train came along, and he turned to see it pass. He was borror-struck when he saw the .train take its awful plunge through the bridge. For a moment, Lennon says, there was perfect quiet, and then the cries of the injured were heard issuing from the debris. Seizing an ax from the barn Len-non started for the wreck, which he reached in a moment. He climbed into a window of one of the coaches that had landed against the stone wall and set to work to release those persons who had been pinned down by broken timbers. Lennon, with his ax, released four men who were badly hurt and handed them out of the window to other men who had come to the rescue. He also handed out the bodies of two dead women, one of whom was nearly decapitated and had both arms severed from her body.

During all this time Lennon says the shrick of the wounded and the groans of the dying made a pardemonium around him. In the meantime, other passengers from the coaches that had remained on top of the embankment, and who had escaped serious injury, had joined in the work of rescue.

In a short time a corps of rescuers and sur geons were at the scene. As the dead were removed they were laid in a row on the stone wall, while the wounded were laid on cushions which were hastily gathered together.

Ambulances and backs had been sent from the city within half an hour after the disaster occurred, and as these conveyances reached the scene they were at once started back to the city laden with the dead, bound to the city morgne or with the injured destined for the hospital. A large number of the injured were also taken to residences in the vicinity, while others were sent to the depois at Forest Hill and Roslindale. Those passengers who escaped serious injury and were able to proceed were taken to the junction at Forest Hill and were forwarded to their destination in the city proper.

George Sanford, of Roslindale, was in the second car of the wrecked train. He told the following story of his experience. He said: "I took the train at Roslindale with my mother. We were sitting in the middle of the second car. There was absolutely nothing to give premonition of the disaster. All at once there was a clash, a deafning noise, a moment or two of the grounding of timbers, and then a moment all was still. suddenness that every body seemed to be parwrecked cars below. Voices calling out for help-wo-were screaming for aid, there around us all were groans from those who were badly hurt or dying. The floor of the car seemed to be forced up to the roof, our entire coach having collapsed apparently. "When the crash came our heads were bauged against the roof, while the seats were strewn about everywhere. Many people were under the seats and some were crushed between them. Directly in front of us sat a man named Ryan. one of my neighbors in Roslindale. We were conversing with him at the moment of the crash. Ryan was half turned in his seat as he talked, and a moment after the wreck, when I saw him again, he was actually run through and car. My mother and I were fastened in between our seats and Rvan's, but I managed to break off Ryan's seat and release ourselves. My mother had fainted and at first I thought she was dead. I pulled her out through a window and she soon revived in the open air. I then secured a carriage and sent her home and devoted myself to helping release other passengers. The sight among the debris was horrible. There were many people dead, pinned down by timbers; many wounded, and all were horribly mangled. I saw one man working like a Trojan to help the others. The top of his scalp and his left ear were nearly torn from his head and he was covered with blood, but he did not realize it. After all had been removed from the car he was working in, some one told him that he must be badly hurt himself. He said he thought not. That he had only received a scratch. He put his hand to his head, and the next moment fainted away and was conveyed to a neighboring house. He was pretty badly hurt. The train was running at a good speed, but had slowed up some as it neared the junction at Forest Hill. The quickness with which the crash came was remarkable. It came in an instant, like a flash of lightning." THE DIFFICULTY IN GETTING THE LIST. It has been impossible, up to this evening, to obtain a correct and complete list of the killed and wounded, owing to the fact that immediately after the catastrophe occurred, its victims were hastily removed from the scene and in such widely diverse directions that it is extremely difficult to trace them all correctly. Some of the injured were at once conveyed to their homes; others were taken to hospitals, while others still found temporary shelter in residences in the immediate neighborhood. Some of the dead-majority of them in factwere brought to the city hospital morgue, but there were others taken to the depots of Reslindale, Forrest Hill and Canterbury. The agents of the railway company are now diligently at work endeavoring to compile complete statistics of the calamity, and a full list of casualties will doubtless be furnished at the earliest practicable attached to the abutments, and but for the chasm and awful wreck beneath, there was nothing to indicate that a bridge had once spanned the abyes. The wreck of the bridge lay under the debris of the train, almost completely shut out from view. Lying by toe side of one of the splintered cars was one of the main iron girders of the bridge which showed a clean new fracture through its entire breadth, at the point of the junction of two of its parts. This girder was composed of two parallel plates of heavy wrought iron, connected by braces of wrought iron and the whole securely belted. The opinion is generally expressed by those who have personally inspected the wreck that the breaking of this girder was the undoubted cause of the disaster. But there is much doubt as to the cause of the breaking of the girder. It has been stated by some that there was a jarring and bumping sensation just previous to the crash, which gives color to the theory that the fourth car, the first to go through the bridge, was derailed and thrown from its tracks to the ties of the bridge with such force as to cause its heavy iron supporters to give way.

The broken axie and broken rail theories find supporters, but the wreck of the bridge sud cars is so complete that it is doubtful if it can ever be determined just what caused the disaster. The bridge was built fifteen years ago, and during the past ten years has been repaired three times, the original wooden trusses having been replaced with iron girders some ten years ago. Workmen have been bus ly engaged all day in removing the debris from the street and from the enbankment. No attempt street and from the enbankment. No attempt street and from the enbankment. No attempt was made to save any portion of the train. At a late hour in the day, as the work of removing the wreck was progressing, additional evidences were found of the terrible nature of the disaster. In some places were fragments of flesh or pieces of clothing which had belonged to some victim, whose remains had been previously removed to the morgue. There was blood over everything, scarcely a splinter being removed that was not stained with the blood of victims. Most of the pieces of clothing found were from Most of the pieces of clothing found were from he train was much larger than that of men, and the fatality among them proportionately greater. pathetic sight was that of two girls with arms

One old lady was taken from a car uninjured, but with her clothing torn to shreds and presenting generally a forloru appearance. She said that the women in her car seemed to be panic-stricken at the moment the crash oc-curred. They all screamed and shouted, pray-ing for release. She saw one woman dying in her seat, while another woman had her head pillowed on the dying woman's breast. One of the most terrible scenes at the acci-dent was that presented to those who first hurried to the street under the bridge.

The headless trunk of a woman was found lying across the timber with one arm completely gone and lower limbs all cut and mangled. The head was found among cut and mangled. The head was found among the tangled iron and fragments of the car, a few feet away. Some of those who were slightly injured were so dazed after being taken out that that they could not realize what had occurred. One man was seen to walk from the wreck in the direction of Roslindale. Daniel Roundy of Roslindale had a most remarkable experience, and his escape from death is considered miraculous. He was in death is considered miraculous. He was in the smoking car and was playing cards with Ed. Snow, Harry Gay and Sargeant Lailler. The crash came and the next thing he knew he was in a muddy street absolutely uninjured and helding in his hand the queen of diamonds, which was covered with blood. His three companions had been killed.

WHICH SEEMS TO BE APPROACH-

Mr. Garrett Appears in Washington, and Talks to Senator Gorman—The Negotistions Still Un-der Way, and Certain of Success— The Rumers on the Streets.

WASHINGTON, March 14 .- [Special.] - The latest and most authentic statement of the Baltimore and Ohio deal is contained in today's Baltimore Sun. It is accepted by the railroad officials in Washington as coming di-rect from headquarters. This report is decidedly different from the others which are flying over the country, but I think it will stand the test of the full development. The San's statement summarized, is as follows:

1st. That the deal practically has been made, and with about the same parties to the agreement that was given to the public last week. There has been something of a change in the plan of negotiating the transaction, but the results will be about the same. The people who are interested in the West Point Terminal company and the Richmond and Danville system of rail:oads are in it. 2. It is alleged that the new concern will not be deterred by the opposition that may be made to the use of the road between Philadelphia and New York. In the near future the Reading railroad will be reorganized and will keep off the coal lands, leased lines and fixed charges that now weigh it down. When it comes forth rehabilitated, the Reading will doubtless be in shape to make contracts with. out rival interference.

3. It is alleged that Mr. Jay Gould is not in the new syndicate but there are a good many people who think that the gentleman's "fine Italian hand" wil be discovered when the screen is removed. It is alleged that the plans don't comprehend the absordonment of the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company, express and parlor car compa-nies. The telegraphs, it is admitted, are not making money, because they are in a war with the Western Union, but they are not much of a burden to carry, and when the rates are advanced, as they must be, they will earn money. In the new deal it is said the telegraphs will be extended. Both the express and parlor car companies are said to be making money. The above, the Sun declares, are statements from sources inside of the Baltimore and Ohlo party, who scout at the stories that their company is financially embarrassed. One of these gentlemen, in a general talk, called attention to the fact that there is not a dollar of bonded debt upon the Washington branch-a doubletracked road of forty miles. Of the $1,650,000 of capital stock, all is in the treasury of the Baltimore and Ohio company except $525,000, owned by the state of Maryland. This he cited as an example of the good properties of-fered by the company. The Johns Hopkins. trustees have given Mr. Garrett the option to dispose of all the university Baltimore and Ohio stock to the syndicate.

Senator Gorman called upon Mr. Garrett in Washington on Saturday and had an interview pressed himself as being werphsequently exthe negotiations as they had been explained to him. The new arrangement, he felt confident, would be of great benefit to Baltimore and to the state of Maryland. Mr. Robert Garrett was only accomplishing what his father had often desired to perfect, a great railroad system. The senator thought the Balti-more and Ohio railroad would not lose its individuality. It would absorb the road with which it was to be consolidated, instead of being absorbed by them. The Baltimore and Ohio would be the only solvent property in the consolidation, but such terms would be made in the negotiations that the Baltimore and Ohio would not be burdened by the debts of the other roads. Mr. Gorman thought the consolidated roads would be ran in honest and not for stock jobbing purposes. As for a stock watering, the Maryland authorities would guard against that. F. H. R.

The Rumors in New York.

NEW YORK, March 14.-[Special.]-There was no dearth of rumors today in regard to the sffairs of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. A statement was published in the morning that the company had secured control of the Richmond and West Point Terminal system, although previous information had rather favored the theory that President Garrett was willing to retire from active railroad manage ment, and, with that purpose in view, had given an option on a controlling interest in the road to the president of the Terminal company. That Mr. Sully did Lot exercise the privilege he had obtained was largely due, it is now generally admitted, to his failure to secure the co-operation of the Pensylvania railroad and in telegraph matters of Jay Gould. When it was discovered that those interests were opposed to the deal, instead of being active in favor and support of it, Mr. Snlly's backing deserted him. One of the friends who would have taken a large interest in the scheme if it had been assured of success, remarked to THE CONSTITUTION correspondent

"The simple result of the negotiations is the widely advertised fact that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is for sale. It is natural that a good many people will devote some attentio to the property, and make some calculations as to its value. In this way the deal may lead by and by to an actual transfer of the control but at present there seems to be no immediate "The control of the road," Mr. Gould observed, "ought to be left with Baltimore a while longer. The people of Baltimore, apparently hold it in high estimation, and they ought rightfully to do the financiering for it. Peraps some one will want to buy the control but the next owner will get it at some reduction from the price recently named."

A statement was published today that the opposition telegraph companies had been united; that in consequence of the change of ownership of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad the telegraph company was to be separated from the railroad company, and with the united lines and postal telegraph companies between the opposition companies has been discussed at times for the past year or more, but nothing has ever resulted from the consideration of the subject. At the general office of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company it was said that no agreement of the kind had

ANOTHER FINGER IN THE PIE. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Expects

BALTIMORE, March 14.—Since it has b generally known that a meeting of railroad men was held in this city, yesterday, people are rapidly coming to the conclusion that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will be sold. People are now talking on the streets about the pessibility of the road failing to pay a stock dividend because of extensions and improvements, in which event large interests may be put to serious inconvenience. There is, however, much confidence manifested in the solidity of the road, and shares sold today at 170, against 165 on Saturday. There were 133 shares sold at a higher figure. It is some time since so much stock was on the market. Mr. Garrett was seen today, but would not say anything in regard to the road nor the telegraph system.

ST. Louis, March 14.—The Republican this morning says a railway official whose connection with the New York and Boston end of certain trains on the Mississippi roads gives him most excellent opportunities to know what is going on behind the curtain, said last night that no one need be surprised if when the smoke of the Baltimore and Ohio deal cleared away, the Atchison, Topska and Santa Fe is found to be owner. He said it was no secret that Atchison used its influence in Garrett's favor when the Arthur Kill bridge bill was pending, and that the success of that measure was due largely to Atchison's efforts. It was asserted by this gentleman that negotiations have been pending between Atchison and Baltimore officials for more than six months and that the bitch in the deal last week was wholly due to the Gould party who week was wholly due to the Gould party who wanted to defeat it because the Missonri Pa-cific did not like the idea of its most powerful cific did not like the idea of its most powerful and energetic rival controlling a continuous line of road from ocean to ocean. Atchison's plan was, it seems, to procure the Baltimore and Ohio through the Richmond Terminal company, so that it could perfect its plans for reaching Staten island under cover, but the uncovering of the scheme will not defeat the original purpose. Contractors are pledged to have the Chicago extension of the Atchison completed by May, 1888, and wolk on the Arthur Kill bridge will be began this spring and the structure completed before the year is out. This would leave a link between Philadelphia and the bridge to cover which could delphia and the bridge to cover which could very easily be done by the time Chicago is reached from the west, when Atchison would have a continuous line of its own between San Francisco and New York much shorter than any other transcontinental route.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 14.—The body of Caprain Eads arrived in the city of Monticello from Nassau, at 12 o'clock, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Hazard, who were with him at Nassau. They were met here by J. F. How, his son-in-law. They left on a private car for St. Louis, at 5 p. m. The funeral will take place there Thursday. The remains were transferred to another casket here, the other having been warped out of shape by gases from the body.

Captain Eads suffered from a cold contracted winter before last, but careful nursing, it was thought, would bring him through. On March 1st he went yachting with frieads. On his return he complained of severe pains in the breast. Medical advice was summoned and everything possible done to arrest the disease, but without avail, and at 12 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Sth instant, he expired. Captain Eads's wife and daughter, Mrs. Hazard, were at his bedside and accompanied the remains to this city. Captain Eads was much wearied by his winter's work in Washington in the interest of the Tehauntepec scheme, and went to Nassau for rest and recuperation.

Attempt Has Been Made to Kill the Czar.

London, March 14.—The report printed by the Standard that an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the czar of Russia had been made is niterly discredited by M. DeStaal, Russian ambassador. In an interview this morning, the ambassador said he had received no telegram in relation to such an attempt, and this was sufficient evidence to convince him that the report was unfounded. If it were true he would have received a dispatch long ago. The ambassador said he was about to attend a service in the Russian chapel in commemoration of the czar's accession to the throne, and it was not likely that he would leave the embassy if there was the least probability of any news of that character being received.

The service in the Russian chapel was crowded with diplomats in full uniform, conspicuous above all being members of the Russian embassy. After the service members of the Russian embassy. After the service members of the Russian embassy. After the service members of the Russian embassy were congratulated by all present that the rumor of an attempt on the life of the czar was unfounded.

In the house of commons this afternoon Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary to the foreign office, stated that the government had been informed that persons with explosives in their possession had been arrested in St. Petersburg yesterday on the route which the czar was to have taken to attend a service which was to have taken to attend a service which was to have been performed in commemoration of the late czar, it being the anniversary of his death. Sir James Ferguson said he was glad to be able to announce that no attack was made on the czar.

London, March 15.—The Berlin correspondent of the London Times has received a cypher telegram announcing the failure of an attempt to kill both the czar and czarina with dynamite bombs. The Berliner Tageblatt has received a similar dispatch, which adds that the leader of the plot has been arrested and imprisoned in the fortress Peto and Paw.

It has transpired that the plot against the czar was widespread and serious and that numerous arrests have been made in connection therewith. A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that six students were arrested on Now Ki Prospect, near Anitchkin palace, having in their possession a quantity of explosives. They were awaiting the coming of the czar on his way to the cathedral to take part in the anniversary services.

Will be specially affected.

Herr Windthorst, in an article in the Germanis, admits that important concessions are granted in the church bill, such as the free formation of seminaries and the liberty given to the church of disciplinary rights, but he declares that paragraphs relating to orders and the right of the veto resolved to the state are inadmissable. The prosecution of the socialists at Pesen involves twenty-eight prisoners, including a commercial traveler for a Frankfort firm, who had in his possession passes connecting him with the anarchists in Rerlin, Saxony, Poland and Russia. The house of the Jesuit Chesewitzky, who is now in prison, was searched, and piles of socialistic carls and pamphlets were found.

A decree has been issued directing that four new infantry regiments and four battalions which have been added to existing regiments, be garrisoned almost exclusively in Alsace-Lorraine and Baden, along the Rhine. Only three battalions are to be stationed along the eastern frontier.

THE POISENED FAMILY.

otor Administers Poison to a Pamily of even Persons One Dies, Three are Dying and the Restare in Danger of Death by the Same-A Terrible Tragedy.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga, March 14.-[Special.]-This morning about 10 o'clock, Mr. Spights, from near Brown's crossing, came to town and reported that the entire family of John Harris, colored, consisting of himself, wife and nine children, were poisoned on the plantation of Mrs. J. M. Morris, last Friday. The poison acted slowly, and medical attendance was not summoned until Friday evening.

ONE OF THE NUMBER DIES. By that time one of the family was past hope, and the balance was in a very critical condition. The symptoms were a dryness of the throat, excessive purging, vomiting, griping in the pit of the stomach and great thirst. Every member of the family were, when found by Dr. Hardeman, in a semi-unconscious state, from which they have not yet recovered. Very little information could be obtained from them. One of the children died Sunday afternoon. Coroner Scott held an inquest over it today. The verdict of the jury was that the child came to death from poison at the hands of some unknown person or persons.

neighborhood, and is grounded upon the fact that he makes the treatment of poison a hobby, and the suspicion is strengthened by the fact that the poisoned family incurred his anger by ridiculing his power. It is supposed he placed the poison in the meal bag by slipping it through a crack in the log house. Several articles of food and the child's stomach have been brought to the city and will be thoroughly examined by experts tomorrow. THE SURVIVORS.

The mother and two other children are almost certain to die, while the fate of all is very uncertain. The case is almost without parallel in the crimes of Baldwin county for atrocity. A thorough investigation is being made, and if the perpetrator is found, proper punishment will be given him. Harris is a hard working negro while the suspicioned doctor is a trifling

A ROAD TO LAFAYETTE. West Point and LaFayette to be Joined by

WEST POINT, Ga., March 14.—[Special.]—A meeting of the business men of LaFayette, Ala, and West Point, Ga., has been held in this place to consider the practicability of building a railroad from this city to LaFayette. By running a road from this place to LaFayette, it will give the latter place direct eastern connection and save thirty miles' haul in their transportation. The only outlet now for LaFayette is by the East Alabama and Cincinnatirallroad, which connects with the Western railroad at Opelika, Ala. It is understood that Welsh, the owner of this road, will extend it to Reanoke, Ala., making LaFayette a way station, and to that extent cripple her busition, and to that extent cripple her busi-ness. To complete a road from LaFayette to this place, her business men have pledged their solid business as well as their money to build it. It is estimated that it will cost $150, 000 to build and equip the road, and the feeling of the meeting was pronounced in favor of the enterprise. To that end the meeting appointed the following capitalists as incorporators: From LaFayette—J. E. Andrews, Chas. Schuster, D. G. Allen, R. W. Allen, J. J. Robinson, F. P. Brock and J. R. Dowdell; from West Point Ga.—W. T. Huguley, A. M. Eady, J. M. Reed, A. J. Driver, L. Lanier, W. H. Harrington and Daniel Merz. She is Attracted by the Shape of the Trapeze

ATHENS, Ga., March 14.—[Special]—DeHaven's show remained in the city just one week. During this time it accomplished many things, but perhaps its most distressing piece of work was the sorrow and trouble its presence caused a good and respectable family in the lower part of the city. One of the performers with the of the city. One of the performers with a muscular, athletic fellow, whose skill show, a muscular, athletic fellow, whose skill upon the trapeze equalled his capacity for doing evil, won the affections of a fifteen year-old daughter of a wealthy couple. The fellow was not attractive in the least, but the girl became perfectly infatuated with him, and was easily persuaded to clope with him when the circus left. The evening of the show's departure, she met her lover in the tent, and was concealed by him in one of the smallest tents. The girl's father and mother soon missed her, and suspecting her whereabouts, went to the circus tent and instituted a close search for the daughter. For-tunately for the child, for she was nothing but a child, they found her and carried her home.

BILL ARP'S LIFE SAVED

By the Seductive Influence of a Tin Pint

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., March 14.—[Special.] Your correspondent was shown yesterday by H Garmany, an old citizen of this county, who resides at Buford, and who, many years ago, ran a tin business, a stick which was cut solely for the purpose of whipping Bill Arp by Jonathan A. Johnson. Mr. Garmany says he saved Arp or Johnson, one or the other, a good beating by getting the stick from the latter. Johnson and Arp had had a difficulty which terminated in a fight, Mr. Arp coming out the con-queror. Johnson was bent on revenge, and wer tat the head of Mr. Mid Montgomery's mill pond and cut a bickory stick, and on his way to Arp, met Mr. Garmany, to whom he told the purpose for which the stick was cut, when Mr. Garmany offered him a pint cup for it, and after some hesitancy, Johnson accepted the proposition and gave up the stick, and for some reason he didn't cut any other for that purpose. This occurred forty years ago, and Mr. Garmany has had the stick since.

THE PAPER NUISANCE. Waste Paper Obstructing the Streets of

MACON, Ga., March 14 - [Special.]—An agenizing wail is going up from residents of Mulberry, Walnut and neighboring streets on account of the great rifts of waste paper that the March winds have driven from Cotton avenue and other localities into the residence portion of the city. There is a special ordinance against scattering loose paper in the streets, and it will be applied to some of the careless ones unless the nuisance is abated. The accumulations of paper are great horse frighteners, and keep the streets and yards littered in a most unsightly manner.

MRS. HILL AND HARRY HILL In Litigation Over Burwell P. Hill's Prop-

From the Oglethorge, Ga., Echo. The contest for the management of the estate of the late Burwell P. Hill, of this county, grows more interesting. First there were two applicants for administrator upon the estate—Mrs. Hill and Harry Hill. Mrs. Hill won, and selected Mr. J. W. Arnold to act for her. Last week Mr. D. C. Hill petitioned Judge Lump-kin to have a receiver for the estate appointed, and filed a bill to show that he had valid claims to the entire property. Judge Lumpkin granted the petition and appointed Mr. M. B. Amason receiver. At the next term of the or-dinary's court an effort will be made to refute the claims of Mr. D. C. Hill and have the receiver removed. If this be done the case will probably go to the superior court, where a hard fight will be made for the estate. Able coun-sel are employed on both sides.

Miss Taylor's Diamonds Lost ATHENS, Ga. March 14.—[Special.]—MissTaylor, a sister of Mrs. Hill of Anon, Ga., lost a pair of diamond bracelets yesterday on the slow train on the Georgia road. The diamonds were the property of Mrs. B. P. Hill, and were valued at $1.500. It is supposed that some one picked property of Mrs. B. P. Hill, and were valued at $1,500. It is supposed that some one picked them up, as they could not be found in the car, but whether or not they will be returned is the question Miss Taylor is deeply interested in. Miss Taylor is a daughter of Colonel Richard W. Taylor, formerly postmaster here.

Mr. Tillis was shot in the head. one of the negroes was killed, the other, after being shot, made his escape, but was arrested later. He was taken to Brunswick, then to Waldo. When arrested he had $150 in cash, one fine gold watch, and double barrel gan taken from the murdered man.

The Americus Recorder says that John Belvin, a colored porter, went before Justice Stubbs and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Ellis Dennard, charging him with burglary. Ellis was promptly arrested and brought be-fore the court for a preliminary hearing, while John went forth to summons his witnesses. The justice waited several hours for John's return, and as the prisoner and crowd began to grow impatient he finally sent a bailiff to look up the tardy plaintiff. Several hours more elapsed and the crowd were on the point of adjourning sine die, when the bailiff returned with the information that the prosecutor had just cloped with the prisoner's wife and were last seen about two miles from town and headed towards Webster county. This put a different light on the whole affair and the prisoner was forthwith dismissed, whereupon he put on his war paint, dug up the tomahawk and started in quest of the guilty pair.

The particulars of a shooting affray which occurred at Rock Spring, Monroe county. Fri-day, have been received. Mr. Tom Hall is a prosperous farmer of Rock Spring, and on his arm are employed several tenants. Friday Mr. Hall went to Forsyth on business. When he returned late in the afternoon he found that Jessie Darden, one of the hands, had loafed away his time. Calling Darden, Mr. Hall told him that his work was very unsatisfactory, and in fact had done nothing at all. Jessie gave him the lie and struck at him with a knife. Mr. Hall rushed to the house, secured his gun, and fired at Darden just as he got within a few feet of the steps. Darden fell, but immediately arose, and advanced again, when Hall ordered him to stop or he would kill him. Jessie then turned and ran away. Later in the night he returned and seemed to be suffering great pain. Examination was made, and it was found that Darden was wounded in the stomach. Mr. Hall summoned a physician who pronounced the wounds painful but not dangerous.

Mr. Smith hastily withdrew and reported the conduct. Alex Reed was soon arrested as one of the parties, and a few hours later Beckwith surrendered to Sheriff Hewitt.

Saturday Judge Fort reduced the bond of Annie Moore, confined in Sumter county jail, who is charged with the killing of Pat Erskine, in October last, from $2,000 to $1,500. The bond originally was $4,000, but as the late grand jury failed to find a bill against her for the crime with which she is charged, the amount was reduced to $2,000. Since that time the unfortunate woman has been in a precasious condition, supposed to have been brought on by her confinement in jail, and only last Saturday it was thought that she would die during the day. Her mother, Mrs. West, of Albany, was telegraphed for and has been in Americus since then. The bond was still jurcher reduced, when a number of benevolent citizens signed the papers and Annie was allowed to go free. She was much affected by the sudden turn of affairs, and wept copiously as she thanked those who had interested themselves in her case. She protests her innocence as stoutly now so on the day of her incarcoration, and is firm in her belief that she will be acquited by the court when the case is again acquited by the court when the case taken up for trial in April. She will to Albany with her mother and deels determination to henceforth lead a different

Cotton Gins, Small Negroes, and Dwelling

CONYERS, Ga., March, 14.-[Special.]-Last night about 11 o'clock the gin house of Mr. J. H. Almend, Sr., was consumed by fire. It stood near the cemetery. There was about a bale of lint cotton in the press, some corn and fodder and about 1,000 bushels of cotton seed in the gin house. The building and contents as stated above, and press, gin and belting, was a total loss. When first discovered the cotton in the press was on fire. It seems that that was where the fire originated. The loss was about $1,400. It is thought to have been the act of an incendiary, as the gin and engine had not been used since January last. There was no

Mrs. Drake, Mr. Mayson, Mayor Hopkins and others who were flear, ran to the affering girl and feally recently in to the suffering girl and finally succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but not until death's work was done. There was but very little fire work was done. There was but very little are in the room where the girl was, as it was not very cold. The body of the girl was terribly burned and her suffering was intense. The baby was slightly singed by the fire before being handed to Mrs. Salmon.

rom the Albany, Gar, News.
Particulars of the horrible death of two lit tle colored children, on a place belonging to Colonel Lee Jordan, near Mr. Henry H. Nelm's in East Dougherty, reached the city yesterday. It seems that the parents of the children were in the field some distance from the house at in the field some distance from the house at work. The two children, the eldest of whom is less than three years old, were left at the house alone. The house had but one door, and near this was a pile of fodder. It is supposed that the children set the fodder on fire, and that the blaze at once cut them off from the door and left them no escape. The house was completely enveloped in flames before any one reached the place, and the children and everything else in the house were burned. The only remains of the children that could be found were their hearts which did not burn. These were their hearts which did not burn. These were found near each other in a position indi-cating that the unfortunate little ones sought the corner of the cabin farthest from the fod-der where the fire evidently started, and there met their terrible doom.

From the Milledgeville, Ga., Recorder.

Last Friday night, about 11 o'clock, the alarm of fire was sounded. It was soon ascertained to be the barn of Messrs. W. & J. Carsker. Those who first reached the rapidly burning barn opened the doors and turned out the stock—three mules and two horses. The the stock—three mules and two horses. The barn contained a cotton gin, three wagons; three cars, two pairs of bugsy harness, plows and plowgearing, 150 bushels of corn, large lot and plowgearing, 150 bushels of corn, large lot of hay and other forage, seventy-five or one hundred bushels of peas, lot of cottonseed, feed cutter, one bale of cotton, etc., all of which was destroyed except the bale of cotton, which was saved in a damaged condition, and a part of the corn, which was left burning after the building was destroyed. There was it sursnee of $250 on the building. Mr. Will Caraker estimates their loss at $1,000. Mr. Will Caraker superintended the feeding of the stock, and says no lights were used. He also visited the lot later in the night, before retiring, and saw no fire. He is unable to account for it, and thinks it must have been set on fire.

MACON, Ga., March 14 .- [Special.] - About 4 o'clock this morning the fire alarm sounde and the blaze was located in two houses lecated on the corner of Fifth and Pine streets, belonging to A. B. Small, the wholesale grocer.

Poth the houses were dwellings, and were occupied by families. From the appearance of things it was clearly the work of an incendiary. There were signs that the fire originated in the back perch of the first house, and there were unmistakable evidences going to show that the house was set on fire by some person or par-sons, but for what purpose could not be guessed.

The second house was only partially burned and the fire was put out before it completed the work of destruction. Mr. Small had had the houses insured until lately, but the policies had been taken off, and the loss is complete. Mr. Small estimates the loss at one thousand dollars.

Good "Rake Off."

From the Chicago Herald. "There is always a pretty good 'rake off' in the box office," said a man with a striped shirt at a down-town theater last night. "The other night a fellow came here and laid dowd a $20 bill for two $1 seats. The purchaser evidently thought he had given me a $2 note, but he walked away before I had time to make the change. We make the best havls when business is light. That seems strange, but it is the truth. When there is a long line at the box office there is little chance to pick up much extra money, for the reason that if a pur-chaser makes a mistake the fellow standing next to him is almost sure to call his attention to it."

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

A Confederate Soldier's Remarkable Tribut to a Brave Boy in Blue. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 6.—To the Editor: In these days when the journals are filled with accounts of "great deeds done by great men," let me tell you of my experience and of my hero. In March, 1865, near Laurel Hill, in North Carolins, I, a member of the First Georgia Infantry, fell with a ballet through my arm in a skirmish with Kilpat-rick's cavalry. The same bullet entered my side and broke one of my ribs. Night was close at hand, and, lying in a lonely place, I stood small chance of receiving aid. In this situation I was found by a band of guerrillas or bushwhackers, those vultures in human form who plundered the dead and dylag on both sides alike. My watch was what they stopped for. Then my pockets were rifled and a gold locket containing my wife's picture appropriated. I remonstrated in vain, and finally threatened vengeance if I lived. This maddened the leader, and, coming close to me, with a fearful oath he said: "Kill the fool and stop his clamor." Judge of my constenation when in the speaker I recognized John M., my lifelong and mortal enemy on account of a feud I need not describe here. The recognition was mutual, and he drew a revolver and was about to fire, when one of his men side and broke one of my ribs. Night was ver and was about to fire, when one of his men said: "Captain, don't shoot here; we are too close to the Yauka"

"Well, then, bring a halter and hang the cur, for he shall not escape me," he said.

His men, five besides himself, hastened to obey, a.d., despite my demonstrations, soon had me under a tree with a noose about my neck and the rope over a limb drawn so tight as to almost strangle me. I was told I had three minutes to live. M., revolver in hand, stood ready to give the word, and I, in awful drawd, awaited the sound of my onemy's drad, awaited the sound of my enemy's voice.

Just then steady hoof beats sounded and a small gray horse, idden by a slight-built, boysh figure, burst into the little glade. He was fair-laced, with blue eyes, as I afterward noted, and dressed in "union blue." His long bair hung curling almost to the collar of his jacket, and to me he looked as handsome as a woman and welcome as an angel. My first thought was a joyful hope of deliverance. My next, as I saw he was alone, a feeling of regret thought was a joyful hope of deliverance. My next, as I saw he was alone, a feeling of regret that one so fair and bold had come to al nost certain death. I was not long in suspense. "Great Scotland!" he shouted. "What are you cowardly curs up to? Let that man loose; for sheme, to hang a wounded man!" The six ruffians drew their pistols, but their leader's voice cautioned them against firing. With a bound the strange horeeman was beside me, and with the butt of his pistol he felled the man who held the rope. M.'s temper get the better of his fears then, and he fired the first shot. Then my deliverer turned facing the han who held the rope. M'stemper get the better of his fears then, and he fired the first shot. Then my deliverer turned facing the group, and again shouting "Great Scotland!" he rode right among them, firing with a pistol in each band. Talk about fighting! I tall you that fair-faced, curly-haired yankee bay was like nothing else so much as a harricane turned gloose! Before the man he had knocked down had recovered from the blow the other five were all down before his fire, and as No. 6 got on his feet and started to run the little gray was after him like a shot. A second blow brought him to the ground, and my deliverer then sprang from his horse and bound the fellow to a tree with the same cord which was about my neck. He then came to me, and, with a touch gentle as a woman's, he examined my wounds, dressed and bound up my wounded arm, and stanched the blood from my side. I essayed to thank him, but he stepped me with a laugh, and said: "The cowards had you foul and meant mischief. I hated to dish them up this way, but they began the ards had you foul and meant mischief. I hated to dish them up this way, but they began the racket, and I guess they deserved all thee got. But I am away behind the column now, and must get you out of this quick and go o1."

He toseed me into his saddle as though I had been a child, mounted with me and took me to some negre achine close by when he is some negre achine close by when he for me. I think he gave the negroes money; anyhow, they nursed me until I could travel, gave me citizen's clothes, and eventually I got back to the wife I left, fully determined never to fight against the "yankees" again. ed never to fight against the "rankees" again, and I never did. I was reported killed in action, and never tried to have the mistake-rectified during the war.

As the brave little fellow turned to leave me

As the brave little fellow turned to leave me I begged to know his name. He laughed and said it was no matter, but I pleaded for it, and on a piece of a letter he penciled an address and put it in my pocket. The blood from my wound partly obliterated it, but it still shows: "D. Hurlbut, Company D, U. S. S." I don't know what state troops these may be, or whether my deliverer be living or dead. But he was and is the bravest and kindest man I ever saw, an I as good a fighter as ever rode a horse in either army.

My wife and I revere his memory as we would a saint's and my children have been taught to pray for blessings on his head. I have traveled much, and now am going home. If any one seeing this can give me his address,

A NEW YORK policeman's life was saved by a thief's bullet striking a brass button of uniform and glancing off. Now John Sherman will cover his incipient boom with brass buttons, to protect it from dangerous attack. Indeed, he will probably distribute a few gold buttons over it.

COLONEL MUSSEY says that the visit of the Sherman party to Charleston was very pleasant, but not a single person came to see them. If Charleston had but known Colonel Mussey this would not have happened. The colonel should have been presented with some confederate souvenirs, and he would have gone his way rejoicing.

THE authorities of South Carolina are bringing to light again the full rigor of their state line. It seems that an Augusta officer crossed it for the purpose of arresting an admitted swindler, and the only harm done was the invasion of the thief's domicile. Strict constructionists would prefer that thief should escape rather than that a state line should be crossed without the usual red

MR. MANNING returned to New York city yesterday, and will probably sail for today. The truth is that Mr. Manping is in a very critical condition, and it may be necessary to abandon the trip alto-gether. The public has not been treated with absolute fairness as to his case. It is far more serious than is generally supposed The man is not only a physical wreck, but his mind is going. The change in him of late has been very marked, and those who have met him within the past month have been shocked past expression at the growing helplessness of the man. He can no longer participate in a connected conversation, and these are all the sad and significant signs of a mental break up. His voice is rising inte a querrulous treble, and at the bare mention of his plans for the future the tears fill his eyes to overflowing. Mr. Manning is abso ely incapable of business, and yet, in the eco of it all, that talk continues about the bank in New York, with its millions of capital to be managed by him. His case is more than for the same time in 1895-86.

Coal-Tar Sugar. Now that it is settled that our leaf lard is to be made from pure cotton-seed oil, instead of from kerosene, let us turn our attention to something new. For instance, there is saccharin, a substance that has recently been extracted from coal tar.

Saccharin appears to be a very curious substance indeed. Its discovery was the result of some investigations set on foot by Professor Remsen, of the Johns Hopkins university, of Baltimore. Mr. Constantine Fahlberg, working under Professor Remsen's directions, obtained from coal tar a new compound which received the name of "bensulphinide." This compound is the saccharin of today. Its sweetness is much more intense than that of cane-sugar.

This discovery proved to be the type of a new series of organic compounds which are still under investigation at the Johns Hopkins university, but F. W. Clarke, of the United States geological survey, writes to the Epoch that they have no relation whatever to the sugars. One member of the group, very recently discovered, is as sweet as saccharin when first placed on the tongue, but an intense bitterness, comparable to that of strychnine, soon follows as an after taste.

Mr. Clarke says that the extraordinary sweetness of the benzoic sulphinide naturally suggested the question of its possible utility, either directly, or as an improver of the less sweet glucose. This question has been worked up by Fahlberg independently, who has secured patents, has made the substance widely known under its new popular name, and has begun, apparently, its manufacture upon a commercial scale. It has been found upon experiment that the sulphinide is physiologically inert, passing through the system unaltered and doing no injury to the eater. Its cost must be considerable how ever; many times over that of sugar, pound for pound; but its intense sweetening power partly offsets the expense of making. The diabetic patient, to whom sugar is dangerous, can use saccharin with impunity; and his life, therefore, need no longer be devoid of literal and material sweetness. Furthermore, saccharin appears to be a powerful antiseptic, so that it may be used in place of sugar, though in much smaller quantities, for the preservation of fruit. It may also serve to conceal the tasteless adulterants of sugar in candies, jellies, syrups, etc., and for other like purposes of discreditable character. As an adjunct to sugar it is likely to have positive value; as a substitute, it can hardly affect the sugar industry at all.

Mr. Clarke suggests that from one point of view the discovery of saccharin has peculiar interest. The study of coal tar, its products and derivatives has, as everybody knows, led to the discovery of many useful substances and to the creation of new and important industries. The aniline dyes are case in point. Thus far the work of inves tigation has been mainly carried on in the European universities, where most of the discoveries of economic importance have been made. This particular discovery is the first of its kind having technological value fruit of the research system cultivated at the Johns Hopkins university. It is an offspring of pure science-science followed for its own sake-and of the policy which regards a university as a place in which knowledge should be not merely distributed but produced. Routine or ultra practical methods of instruction cannot yield the highest results, for scientific discoveries as such must be made before they can be applied.

Playing With Fire.

A reporter of the New York Mail and Express called on a famous evangelist-probibibitionist at his hotel the other night, and easantly entertained. The evangelist prohibitionist, it is stated, 'ordered up several bottles of ginger ale." He put the reporter completely at his ease by drinking a glass of the ale, remarking at the same time that it was "free from malt, pureand healthy.

Under the refreshing influence of his mild tipple the genial reformer assured the newspaper man that prohibition would sweep the country, and that the republicans would probably capture the "wet" movement., securing enough southern states to elect a republican prohibition president.

The predictions referred to are not worth discussing. But the ginger ale business won't do. It is useles to say that the stuff is free from malt. That does not alter the fact that it contains a small per centage of alcohol. It will stimulate and that is why people drink it. If a man thinks that he can guzzle it, and at the same time pose as a genuine prohibitionist he is guilty of an inconsistency that all the world will see, whether he sees it or not. The total abstinence apostle who makes a beverage of ginger ale is playing with fire.

The Cotton Movement.

The New York Financial Chronicle, in its weekly review of the movement of the cotton crop, says that up to Friday night the total receipts have reached 72,953 bales, against 79,951 bales last week, 95,013 bales the previous week and 86,582 bales three weeks since: making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1886, 4,929,138 bales against 4,669,431 bales for the same period of 1885-86, showing an increase since Sep tember 1, 1886, of 259,707 bales.

The exports for the same period reach a total of 81,472 bales, of which 43,146 were to Great Britain, 594 to France and 37,732 to the rest of the continent. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 564,200 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up this week 1,821 bales, including 300 for export, 1,521 for consumption-for speculation and-in transit. Of the above. bales were to arrive. The impoats into con tinental ports for the same period have been

48.000 bales. There has been a decrease in the cotton receipts to Friday night of 79,591 bales as compared with the same date of 1886, an increase of 188,393 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1885, and a decrease of 214,529 bales as compared with

The old interior stocks have decreased during the week 27,477 bales and are tonight 181 911 hales less than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 2,864 bales less than the same week last year, and since September 1 the receipts at all the towns are 62,542 bales

since September 1, 1886, were 5,118,040 bales; in 1885-86 | were 5,075,317 bales; in 1884-85 were 4,653,398 bales. Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 72,953 bales, the actual movement from plantations was only 43,924 bales, the balance being taken from the stocks at interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 41,bales and for 1885 they were 24,534

The increase in amount in sight from the plantations, as compared with last year, is 93,822 bales, the increase as compared with 1884-5 is 656,093 bales and the increase over 1883-84 is 719.021 bales.

With respect to the Indian cotton movement, Bombay appears to show an increase compared with last year in the week's re ceipts of 11,000 bales, and an increase in shipments of 16,000 bales, and the shipments since January 1 show an increase of 14,000 bales. The movement from the ports other than Bombay is 500 bales more than the same week last year.

The weekly consumption in Europe now 138,000 bales of 400 pounds each, against 134,000 bales of the same weight at the corresponding time last year. The total spinners' stocks in Great Britain and on the continent have increased 204,000 bales during the month, and are now 292,000 bales in excess of last season.

Another Railway Horror.

The account given in our telegraphic columns of the accident on the Boston and Providence railroad, is fully as shocking as the story of the great disaster in Vermont several weeks ago.

Fortunately in this instance the deathdealing car stove was headed off before it could put in its work, but there was, in reality, very little left for it to do. After Ithe smoker had been piled upon the four cars under it, crushing them into splinters, and grinding the passengers into a mass of broken bones and pulp, it would have been difficult to add to the horrors of the situation.

Several points are worthy of consideration by the experts who are endeavoring to diminish the perils of railway travel. The engineer was presumably all right. The bridge was comparatively new. A car truck gave way, precipitating the car against an butment. The bridge could not stand the tremendous shock, and fell in, carrying five cars with it. If each car had been inspected before starting on this run, there would have been no breaking down of the truck, no collision with the abutment, no giving way of the bridge, no slaughter of the scores of persons now reported in the list of the dead.

We would not seek to convey the impres sion that railway travel is now accompanied by a greater number of fatalities than was the case in the past. The fact must be borne in mind that more trains are running, and more people are traveling. Statistics show that the number killed and injured on the rail makes a smaller per centage of the traveling public than the record showed some years ago. This is some comfort, but the problem of comparatively safe transit still remains to be solved.

A Few Strange Facts.

In a collection of statistics based upon th last census we find the following points of interest : The total population of the union, as given in round numbers, is males, 25,518,000; females, 24,036,000. The total annual deaths were, males, 391, 000; females, 364,000. In proportion to the population, 368,000 women should have died to maintain the same relative mortality with the men. Of the defective classes there were of idiots 45, 00 males and 31,000 females. In proportion the hould have been 36,600 female idiots. Of blind there were 26,000 males and 22,000 females In proportion there should have been 24 000 bline

Of the deaf mutes thee rwere 18,000 males and 15,000 females. In proportion there should have been 17,000 deaf mute women. In almshouses there were 35,000 men and 31,000 women. In proportion there should have been 33,-

000 pauper women. In prisons there were 54,000 men and 5,000 women To maintain the proportion there should have been 50,000 women in prison or ten times as many as

The only place where the weakness of women was shown was in the matter of insanity, the statis was shown was in the matter of insanity, the satist ties of which give 44,000 men and 47,000 women in public asylums. To maintain the relation there should have been only 41,000 insane women. When, however, it is considered how much cause for fe male dementia is contributed by the men the smal number of crazy women is notable.

Evidently the women are not holding their own, but they outlive and bid fair to outnumber the men.

The matter is worth looking into. An alarmed contemporary suggests that other nations of Amazons may yet make their appearance, but this is a purely fanciful apprehension. The Amazons of the past, the warrior women who lived and died like men, were made possible by destructive wars in which all the men of certain nations were exterminated. Under our modern civilization such a condition of things is manifestly impossible, but the superabundance of wo men in the older countries, and their rapidly growing strength in the United States give the students of social problems something to think over. Do the statistics quoted support the popular doctrine of the survival of the fittest?

Those states which pay their governors meanly have not had better governors than the rest, but they have nearly siways had rich men for governors, and sometimes worse, men who worked the office "for all it was worth" by manipulation of spoils of some kind or other. interesting that with Internal Revenu Inspector William King.

From the Grand Rapids, Mich., Democrat A tall, erect, military appearing gentleman with keen blue eyes, handsome, clear cut, regular features, hair and mustache closely cropped and tinged with gray, made a distinguished looking figure at the Morton last evening. He was William of Atlanta, Ga., appointed by President land about a year ago to the responsible and mportant office of internal revenue inspector. Mr King, whose duties take him all over the country nom Maine to Texas, is a keen observer of men nd things. Mr. King, in conversation with a semocrat reporter, said that fAtlanta was now a thoroughly Icosmopolitan city of about 75,000 in habitants. It more closely resembled Kansas City Mo., and Schenectady, N. Y., than anyother towns he knew of. The local option law now in effect in d produced some very peculiar effects. He did not consider that it had been detrimental at all to the business prosperity of Atlanta. Frohibition in that city had been passed by a very small majority and there was a good deal of opposition to it but no prospect of a change for two years, as the citizens, under the "local option" law, vote on the liquor question for that length of time. In Atlanta liquor was sold on the sly almost everywhere, although he did not think there was so much consumed as formerly. There were many ways of violating the law. A recent "wrinkle" was for darky boys to carry the coveted beverage in bottles carefully concealed in baskets to business offices, where the corn "juice" was disposed of to thirsty consumers at a remunerative price. Some annoyance was caused by the numerous trials for violating the law. Those who were caught seldom had the money to pay their fine, hence the jails were overcrowded. Atlanta was the only large city in the state where prohibition prevailed, and most of the liquor consumed was brought from other cities which had voted in favor of license. In the small towns prohibition was rigidly enforced.

Mr. King says that although Atlanta has no water power, forty-six per cent of her population are engaged in manufacturing. The products are of great variety. A stranger in the town would be surprised at the business rush visible everywhere. Everybody was too busy chasing after "business" to notice or care whether one was from the north, south, east

AN ARISTOCRAT ASTRAY.

The Duke of Sutherland Encounters a Genuine Florida Cracker.

From the Jacksonville Times-Union. Class distinctions are wholly ignored or are inknown to the average American citizen of the backwoods. This was illustrated in the pithily narrated circumstance by Judge Tillman of the duke of Sutherland's encounter with, what to him, must have been a veritable rara avis, the hack

As they drove slowly along the sandy road the driver waxed communicative and singled out his grace as the object of his attention and patronage, always addressing him as "Mr. Duke." As the day wore on and Jehu felt that Duke was a kindred spirit from "furren parts" and "fur back," he grew confidential and familiar calling, the duke for spirit from Turen pares and fur once, he grew confidential and familiar, calling the duke in a jocular manner "Captain Duke." The duke good naturedly responded to his driver's comments in a dignified way, showing by neither glance nor word that he thought him too familiar upon short acquaintance, even when the large(sun-browned hand was laid patronizingly upon his shoulder, or he was tapped familiarly on the back, or punched in the ribs to have his august attention directed to

At length a halt was called and the party freshed the inner man with wine. The duke's light flannel coat became caught over the ivory handle of a dagger worn in the pistol pocket of his

"Hold on, Captain Duke," called the driver, "Hold on, Capian Puke, canten the unver, "Your coatis caught in your britches, let me take it out," and Jehu drew down the offending garment, and fell to work vigorously dusting "Capian Duke," remarking that he was "moughty dusty." COLUMBIA, S. C., March 14.—[Special.]—
Some days ago W. S. Snyder, of Augusta, was smoothed for keeping a gaming table. Eluding the efficer, he came in the direction of Columbia, but was intercepted at Lexington and put in jall. For convenience of proceedure he was removed to jail here, and proceedings in habeas corpus were begun. Meantime Officer Polk came here with a requisition from Governor Gordon for Snyder's delivery to the Georgia antherities. On the hearing before Chief Justice. deme here with a requisition to the Georgia authorities. On the hearing before Chief Justice, Singson here, on Saturday, it was held that Sayder's detention was unlawful, and he must be discharged; but Governor Richardson, recogning Governor Gordon's requisition, had ordered the sheriff to deliver up Snyder to officer Polk. This was done Saturday night. Thereupon W. S. Montieth, Snyder's own layer, swore out a warrant against his client charging him with gambling in Columbia last November. This warrant was delivered to the sheriff and Snyder arrested en it. So he was held by two warrants. Montieth again got sut a habeas corpus before Chief Justice Simpson; a hearing was had this afternoon. Montieth had affidavits and telegrams showing that Governors. davits and telegrams showing that Govener Gordon was not in Atlanta when the requisition was issued, and charged that the lane was void. Monteith wanted a postponeent until Wednesday to get further proofs. thief Justice Simpson decided the requisition ing regular, with Governor Gordon's signature, and under the great scal of Georgia, he 718 bound to recognize it. He therefore remaded Snyder to the custody of Officer Polk, who took him to Augusta thie evening. Sny-der is a tough-looking customer. He takes his vicissitudes very philosophically.

Constituents. AUGUSTA, Ga., March 14 .- [Special.]-Long before 8 o'clock, the Hussar's hall was crowded to its ntmost capacity to hear the address of gressman Barnes. When he entered the hall a burst of applause of some minutes duratien greeted him. Among the audience were many ladies. The president, Colonel C. C. Jones, opened the meeting with a short but eloquent speech of welcome to our honored con-

When Major Barnes arose, bursts of applause sidem equaled, arose from the audience. He opened by thanking the people for his welcome reception, and stated that, instead of making a speech, he simply intended giving them a plain talk. He first dealt of national affairs, his first right to Washington in an official capacity—the difference between work in the United States ecogress and the state legislature. In the house of representatives, he said, everything was masseted through committees, and if a ma-jority of the committees believe in certain matters, they were passed, as their opinion had to be taken upon the simple old Presbyterian faith in the house. Said he: "Things seemed to be one perpetual scramble, and I soon found out the man who scrambled most come sat best I learned how other fellows scram-lied, and then I commenced to scramble."

Continuing, he said: "I was asked today

how it would do to fight Cleveland. I replied that I thought it would be a very unwise step." [Applause.] He said he didn't agree with Caveland on the currency question, but he believed these grand results of inestimable raine followed on his administrative. value followed on his administration. When elected the political question all through the northwest was, "would it do to trust the government in the hands of the democratic party." When Cleveland took the reins of power it was useless to try and prove that the south was not true to the national flag. It has been demonstrated that the question of personal freedom was not due to the success of either party. We of the south certainly now feel that we are part of the grand element of this glorious country." He then spoke of local questions, saying that he didn't propose to tell how the public building bill was passed. His work was a labor of leve. He watched the bill from the commencement to the close. The building will not only be a benefit to Augusta, but the entire district. It requires carnest watchfulness to get an appropriation, which was all that could have been gotten. What he did get was a matter of sincere gratification to himself, and the appreciation of his constituents was far greater to him than wealth or honor. "Then," said he, "there are other questions of deep local interest. I feel deep interest in the improvement of the Savannah river." He then spoke enthusiastically of the great benefits to Augusta to be derived therefrom, giving short accounts of the past benefits Augusta has derived from the river, further stating that in 1827 fifteen steamboats had plied the Savannah fiver. In those days Augusta was the great distributing point of this entire section. He mjoiced to know the merchants were organizing steamboat lines. By this we have the opportunity of improving the commerce of the sty and restoring it to its position in the past empared to other cities.

He then said that he had been asked to say something about the new hotel, and as he was indulging in a family talk, he would do so. The public building and the improvement of the river were matters of great importance, but were utterly insignificant in connection with this question of a magnificent hotel. Augusta needs to be advertised, and a magnificent hotel is the best advertisement she could have at

"I think I have been one of the best adverisements Augusta has ever had. When I wabbled about in the house of representatives some fellow in the gallery asks:

"Who is that fellow? "Somebody else says:
"'He is from Augusta, Ga.'

I hear the question is asked, "Where is Augusta?" By this, you see, I have been adverising Augusta.

"The people in the north don't seem to think there is any place in Georgia but Atlanta, I am proud of Atlanta. I glory in the fact that I am a citizen of such a state that has a city like Atlanta. I glory in Atlanta. I'm proud of Atlanta and proud of her achievements, proud of the way she has carried herself. She has inferior advantages to Augusta, and when I see her rising I'm proud of her, but I feel ashamed of Augusta with her great natural advautages. Augusta should rise up and regain her position of old by availing herself of her great natural advan tages. If a place in America is advertised, it is Atlanta. Don't envy her, but imitate the Qualities which brought about those great results. Every one says Augusta has no accommodations. Build up magnificent hotels, and bring people here to see what we have. Then we can make Augusta what it deserves to be, the queen of our hearts." Ke concluded by thanking the audience for the demonstration shown him, and stating that there was nothing he desired more to do than make Georgia the garden spot of the world, and the tenth congressional district the garden spot of Georgia. The andience were highly pleased with the speech, and applauded him throughout, TOLD BY PATROLMEN.

Stories of Deeds and Misdeeds Gathered While on their Beats Yesterday. Jim Godetts was arraigned in police court yesterday morning and was fined fifteen dol-lars and cost and bound over in the sum of three hundred dollars for assault with intent to murder.

Godetts has been working at Chambers's stable, and on Saturday last become engaged in a quarel with Frank Arnold, another negro. The quarrel resulted in a fight, and during the fight Godetts grabbed up a pitchfork and ran it into Arnold. The wound made by a prong of the fork was a serious but not dangerous one. Godetts was unable to make the bond, and was sent to jail. A case was made against Arnold, but he was discharged.

THIETY DAYS ON THE BOCK PILE.

Will Moore, the negro boy who threw a stone at George House, a companion, near the operationse, Saturday, was arraigned in police courty yesterday morning. The evidence against Moore was very damaging, and a fine of $15 was imposed. In addition to the fine a bond of $300 was imposed for assault with intent to murder. The boy was unable to pay the fine, and was sent to the rock pile for thirty days. When he finishes his time he will be sent to iail.

FINED FIVE AND COST. James Smille, the young man who was arrested Saturday night because of a trouble at John Post's residence, on Butler street, was straigned in police court yesterday morning. The evidence adduced caused Judge Anderson to impose a fine of five dollars and cost. George Cole was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Nolan. THE BONANZA AGAIN.

The second case is against Augustus Fleisch, proprietor of a wineroom at No. 5 Decatur street. The case was made by Patrolmen Pool, Walton and Mechan, and the charges are brought by witnesses who say they purchased liquor at retail. Mr. Fleisch, the proprietor of the wineroom, asserts that the case cannot be established. The officers, on the other hand were busy dishing out about, fifty subpenas last night. MR. STEVE GRADY COMES UP AGAIN.

A case was booked against Steve Grady, the winercom man, during the day. The infor-mation against the defendant was lodged at police headquarters by Patrolman Cochran, and the case was made by Captain Manly.

TWO FIRES THIS MORNING.

One in the Eastern and the Other in the Western Portion of the City.

Two fires were raging in Atlanta this morning when the clock struck two, one in the eastern portion of the city, and one in the extreme western portion, and property valued at $3,500 was destoyed.

at $3,500 was destoyed. THE FIRST FIRE.

Shortly before two o'clock an alarm from box 61, corner Wheat and Collins streets, called the department to Wheat street between Butler and Calhoun. The fire was in a large frame tenement house, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney, and occupied by a number of negro families. By the time the department arrived the house was almost entirely consumed, and all efforts to save anything were useless.

The fire originated in the office and drug store of Dr. I. L. Couch, at 101 Wheat street, and spread rapidly to the other portions of the building. There were eight or ten negro families living in the butlding, and all lost their entire household effects, some escaping with nothing more than their night clothes, The building was a total loss. It was valued at between $2.500 and $3.00. and was insured in the Con-ing more than their night clothes. The building was a total loss. It was valued at between $2.500 and $3.00, and was insured in the Continental, J. C. Whitner's agency, for $1,300. The cause of the conflagration is unknown. Dr. Couch claiming that he left no fire in his office when he left early in the evening.

A GROCERY STORE BURNED.

The second alarm was rung about ten minutes after two, and in a second almost the entire western portion of the city was brightly illuminated. Persons who saw the light were of the opinton that Boyd & Baxter's furniture factory or the bridge works were on fire, so large was the blaze. The fire, however, was further out. Gifford & Co.'s grocery store at 689 Marietta street, near Wallace street was burning. The alarm called out steamer No. 3, which did not respond to the first call and the men were soon at the burning building. The store was a large one story frame building, and was stocked with a big invoice of goods. Water has not been supplied to that section of the city, and the firemen were almost powerless. They did all they could, and by their hard work the fire was extinguished before the building was entirely destroyed. The stock was greatly damaged by removal, smoke and water. The origin of the fire is at present unknown. It is thought, however, that it was caused by "rats among the matches." The building belonged to Mr. Dean and was worth $1,200. It was damaged fully $600. Gifford & Co., lost probably $1,000.

Mr. Gifford, was in the store asleep when the alarm was given, and barely escaped with his life.

PROBABLY FATAL ACCIDENT. A Railroad Man Struck by a Western and Atlantic Train and Cannot Live. Virgil Hardeu, a young railroad man whose home is in DeKalb county, was struck by a train near Bolton, yesterday morning, and cannot live.

Harden went out to Bolton to take charge of a section on the Western and Atlantic. At that point the tracks of the Georgia Pacific and the Western and Atlantic run side by side, and it is due to this fact that Harden was injured, probably fatally. As he was walking along the Geoma Pacific tracks he saw a train approaching, and stepped aside to get out of its way. As he stepped upon the Western and Atlantic track, he was struck from behind by ressence train number 3, the sampach of passenger train number 3, the approach of which he did not notice. Hardin was thrown from the track and was badly injured. Au ex-amination showed that his face had been badly amination showed that his face had been badly cut, his skull cut open, an arm and a leg broken. Medical assistance was at once summoned, and the unfortunate man was removed to Dr. Gann's office, at Bolton, where he received the best attention possible. The physicians would not allow him to be removed to this city, fearing that his death would result. He was, at last accounts, in a very precarious condition, and cannot live long. and Gete in Trouble.

Matt Kiser, a young man well known about the city, occupied a cell in the city prison last night, and will be arraigned in police court this morning to answer to the charge of disorderly conduct.

The case promises to be a sensational one.

Two witnesses are booked to appear against the defendant. One is Mrs. Jennie Cohen and the other is a negro woman. The case was made at the request of Mrs. Cohen, who asserts that Kiser came to her home on Bell street near Wheat last Saturday afternoon, and after forcing his way into the house attempted to to enter her room. She was alone, but was perfectly able to take care of herself. Entering her room as she fied from the accused, she grabbed a pistol and threatened to use it. The pistol frightened Kiser away, and Mrs. Cohen reported the case to Policemen Stroud, and Lanier, who made the case.

THE CLERKSHIP.

The Clerk of the United States Court to Re-

It was told a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION last night that Judge Newman will not take any action regarding the clerkship of the United States courts until next July, when he will name the successor of Colonel Buck, as the clerk of the district court. As clerk of the circuit court Colonel Buck, as the clerk of the district court.

circuit court Colonel Buck will not be dis-turbed. He will retain this position.

A great deal of pressure has been brought to bear upon Judge Newman to induce him to bear upon Junge Newman to induce him to make an appointment at once, but this he has recisted by reasons which he deems cogent. There are many applicants for the clerkship, there being no less than eleven citizens of Fulton county who are candidates for the po-sition. Several prominent citizens of Macon are said to be eager aspirants for the place.

THE BALL FOUND.

Autopsy on the Body of a Yeung GirlMurdered by Her Cousin.

Mount Holly, N. J., March 14.—The coroner's inquest on the body of Mary Canderson, the young girl shot on the night of February 7th, on Ayerstown road, near this place, was held today. The autopsy, by Professor Paucoast, discovered the ball in the middle of the brain resting on the back portion of the ethmoid bone, which was not the location given by the induction balance. The jury decided that death was caused by inflammation and abcesses caused by a wound from a pistol ball, and that the ball was fired from a pistol in the hands of Barclay Peak, her cousin. in the hands of Barclay Peak, her cousin

NEW YORK STOCES.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, March 14.—The new week opened on the stock exchange with a moderately active and week market, with a more general distribution of business and interest than has been seen for some time. There was a marked disposition to buy shown by a foreign house early in the day, but the pressure of stocks for sale and a persistent ering by the hears soon became too much for the weak support given to prices, and a general de-cline, which affected the entire list, followed. The general feeling was considerably mixed, but the general feeling was considerably inixed, but the waiting policy of advocates of higher prices gave the bears an opportunity to raid the entire list. The market displayed considerable feverishness, but soon become decidedly weak throughout, while Baltimore and Ohio dealers still continued to be the principal disturbing element, in the weak-ness displayed, and the rumors circulated in re-gard to Hocking Valley stock became a great factor in creating a bearish temper in speculation. The stories circulated were to the effect that the company is in serious financial; trouble, and that default is probable at the next interest [payment on sixes. There was considerable talk of a receiver-ship as weil. The Richmond and West Point was next in the order of weakness displayed. There being a very sharp pressure to sell in that stock, the general list sympathized closely, although its movements were not so wide. The bears used the increasing scarcity of money very freely as a lever to depress values. Although the closing rates were very low, be opening this morning was decidedly strong, and advances over Saturday's final figtres ranged up to % per cent. There were further small gains in the early trading, but before the end of the first fifteen minutes the entire market was declining under the lead of the Hocking Valley, Richmond and West Point, and Union Pacific. After the first hour there was a period of duliness, but the pressure was soon renewed and a declining tendency continued until 1 p. m. After that time there was a fractional rally, which was followed in turn by a loss of the small gains recorded. The last hour showed a much better feeling, and the close was quiet but firm at small fractions better than the lowest of the day. The entire active list is lower this evening, although the losses are for fractional amounts only, except for Hocking Val ley, which is of 4%, and Texas Pacife 1. The sales aggregated three hundred and one thousand shares. Exchange week at 485368-188. Moneyeasy at 3568 6 closing, at 8@4. Sub-treasury balances; Coin $134,281,000; currency $19.2-2,000. THE CHICAGO MARKET, Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution.
CHICAGO, March 14.—The market was rather dull and generally weaker. Today there were few outside orders and there was less doing on local account than for some days past, the visible supply showed a decrease of 1,515,000 bushels, but the re ceipts were larger, aggregating at eleven points 68,800 bushels, the clearings from those ports were 212,000 bushels. The starting price for May deliy ery was 82%, a shade higher than the closing on Saturday, but this proved to be the top figures for the day. Heavy offerings broke the market off to Sie from which a rally to 81% coccurred during the atternoon, at which figures the market rested for

THE PATENT WIRE GAUZE OVEN DOOR IS THE LATEST IMPROVEMENT ON THE

It produces Practical Results in Baking and Roasting never before attained in any Cooking Apparatus, and will Bevolutionize the Present Methods of Cooking is, that all Food Bahed or Rousted, should be cooked in fresh air freely admitted to the own. This is done by discarding the close own door herstofore used, and substituting for its door containing a sheet of Wire Gauze nearly as large as the door of teelf.

Through this Gauze Door the air freely circulates, facilitating the process of cooking, and producing food that is unequalled in flavor and nutrition, and extually cooked with less consumption of feel than in an own with a closed door.

It makes an enormous saving in the weight of mead, requires less attention from the cook, and promotes the health of the family by the SUPERION QUALITY OF THE FOOD CORED IN IT.

OPINION OF AN EXPERT.

MRS. MARY B. WELCH, Teacher Domestic Econor
Iowa State University, says: "My deliberate judgms is that the oven of the Kange, as compared with othe is not only more equally heated in every part-front well as rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation to the food placed therein is better contact.

A Decision of the Court which is of Interest to Attorneys. Decisions were rendered yesterday morning

J. C. Williams et al. vs. J. D. Folsom, judgment of the court below reversed; S. D. Niles vs. Eliza E. Groover, decision of the court below ffirmed. On behalf of the court, Chief Justice Bleckley

on behalf of the court, Chief Justice Bleckley announced to the members of the bar a decision of interest to them. It seems that in view of the approaching celebration of St. Patrick's day, which will also be the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Hibernian society of Savannah, those members of the Savannah bar having cases in the supreme presented a petition to the court asking that the call of such cases as they might be interested in be deferred so that they might remain in Savannah for the celebration. Great preparations have been made to render this occasion one of much more than ordinary interest. The oration of the day will be delivered by General Henry R. Jackson, and the other exercises will doubtless be very interesting. The Savannah lawyers, especially those of Irish descent, are especially anxious to be pretent and so expressed themselves.

Chief Justice Bleckley thought that the court could not arbitrarily undertake to change its order of business to suit the engagements of counsel elsewhere. He expressed his regret at not being able to grant the request, but thought the action would neither be proper nor would it be just to the circuits which follow the Savannah circuit in order. The chief justice added that all such requests should come before the court publicly and should be passed upon in open session, and that this must be done in the future.

BACK FROM THE EAST.

Governor Gordon and Attorney General Anderson Return From New York.

Governor Gordon returned from New York on the Richmond and Danville train, yesterday afternoon, and was at once driven to his office in the state house, where he was found shortly afterward by a Constitution reporter. In response to an inquiry as to the outcome of his visit so far as it related to the affairs of the state, and the Spartanburg and Asheville railroad, the governor said:

"We met the parties whom we went to see-"We met the parties whom we went to see—the West Point Terminal people, who control this road—and had a very satisfactory interview, learning their position and explaining to them 'the position of the minority stockholders. We found after a full conference, that it would be necessary for us to appoint a committee to ascertain additional facts in reference to the condition of the road, and the number and amount of damage suits against it still unsettled. It was agreed, in view of this that we should have another meeting later on, probably in Atlanta.

should have another meeting later on, probably in Atlanta.

"We hope to avoid the necessity of a suit in chancery, but all the minority stock holders—among whom is the state of Georgia—have come to an entire understanding among themselves as to their rights, and we have very little doubt of maintaining them."

"It is stated that you have accepted an invitation to be present at the national drill, to be held in Washington in May," remarked the reporter.

"That is not strictly correct," began the governor. "I had thought well of the gathering of the troupe from the different states, and had expressed the wish that it might be possible for me to be present, but said I would have to look into my public engagements before ac-cepting absolutely. The probability is that I shall not attend."

It has been definitely settled that Governor Gordon will attend the competitive drill in Macon, in May, and he fears that were he to accept the Washington invitation also, he might be compelled by press of business to dis-appoint the managers of the latter event.

Hon. Clifford Anderson, attorney general, did not return with the governor, but passed through the city on a later train, en route to 20 Markham House, Atlanta, Ga., at auction Tuesday, March 29, at 11 a. m., on the premises. Samuel W. Goode, agent; N. R. Fowler, auctioneer. This famous hotel was built of brick and stone in 1875, is modern in style, convenient in its arrangement, has a long list of daily arrivals, holds the support and good will of old castomers, and controls much of the patronage of the transient public. It has 180 bell bedrooms, well furnished, papered or painted, lighted and ventilated; all opening out on a street or open court. Its office, parlors, arcade, reading and writing rooms. barbershop, billiard hall, bar, news stand, dining room, cultinary department, etc., are very complete, giving confort to guests and economy to the proprietos. Water and bathing arrangements, gas, electric belis and all modern conveniences are at hand. The subsections in the control of the properties of the sale and all modern conveniences are at hand. The subsection is the sale of the sale and the sale of the and economy to the proprietes, whater and bathing arrangements, gas, electric bells and all modern conveniences are at hand. The sub-leases usually pay half the annual rental, which has never been less than $10,000. The three stores rentseparately for over $2,000. The ground alone, 162x200 feet, is worth $75,000, and the building cost more than that sum. It is so well protected by strong walls, fire plugs and hose attachments throughout, that the insurance is very low. Its location is the most advantageous possible, being only ten feet from the cener of the city, and within sixty feet of the union passenger depot. Baggage of guests always delivered free. The owner beling too far advanced in years to take the active management of it, and his only son being too feeble in health, has wisely decided to sell it at a price which makes it the best investment now on the market in Atlanta, the terms being one-third cash, the balance in 1, 2 and 2 years, with 8 per cent interest. Juspection is invited and correspondence solicited. Address for further particulars.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS PRE-PARE FOR THE COMING CAMPAIGN

Captain J. W. English Is Re-Elected Chairman -- Mr. E. W. Martin Succeeds Elimself as Chairman Protem--Dr. Goldmith Again Made Sec-retary-- Mr. Stephens Spevks.

The board of police commissioners convened in regular session in their chamber at police headquarters last night. There were present Commissioner English, chairman, and Commissioners Martin, Goldsmith, Stephens and Brotherton, and Mayor Cooper.

The monthly reports of the chief, the stationhouse keeper, and the captains were presented, examined and approved. Bills amounting to $142.85 were handed in by the chief and were on the table in front of Mr. Stephens a copy of the Sunday Avalanche was spread out, and as the chief began handing in the bills Mr. Stephens opened the paper and commenced searching for something. Just as the last bill was handed in a smile made its appearance upon Mr. Stephens's face, and as the bill was passed up, he remarked:

"Mr. Chairman, I notice here in this sheet quite a stery about some money paid out for bringing Barney Lee backfrom Macon and I did not hear anything of it in those bills just presented."
"That bill has been paid and passed into the

"So this paper says. But I thought it was necessary that the bill should be audited by this body before it is paid," said Mr. Stophens.

"Not at all," answered the chairman.

"But isn't there a law to that effect? Isn't there an ordinance or a rule of something that makes it necessary to examine all bills before they are paid?" asked Mr. Stephens picking up a copy of the city code and beginning a search of the index.
"There is a rule which requires this body to pass up all bills touching the regular expenses of this department. That was an incidental, of this department. That was an incidental, and under a resolution recently passed by this board, the power has been delegated to the chairman to sign those incidental expensabilis. The bill was presented to me and signed and then turned in by the chief to the city clerk as that much money."

"But I see here," said Mr. Stephens, "that "But I see here," said Mr. Stephens, "that one dollar was given Barney Lee with which he bought whisky and five dollars for his services. Is that true?".

"Not at all. Chief, I wish you would get these bills and bring them to the board." said the chairman, addressing Chief Connolly.

The chief left the chamber to secure the bills, and as he walked out the chairman said:

"In enforcing the prohibition law it is necessary for the officers to spend a little money occasionally, and the chief has been instructed to furnish them with it."

"Well, I want to know, that's all," said Mr. Stephens. "Now, this sheet criticises you, as chairman, for paying the bill, and I want to know how the money was spent."

The chief walked in with the bills in his hand, and when the board passed it the bill

"I guess the gentleman is right," said Mr. Martin, smiling. "Mr. Secretary, will you tell us who have been elected?"

"Messrs. English and Brotherton," replied Secretary Goldsmith, "and they have qualified by taking the required oath."

"Well, I nominate for chairman Captain English," said Mr. Brotherton.
"How will you your gentlemen?" saked Mr.

"How will you vote, gentlemen?" asked Mr.

"I move that the secretary cast the vote,' said Mr. Stephens.

"I have always found a viva voce vote the best," said Mr. Cooper, "and I move that the secretary call the roll, and that each member answer as his name is called. The motion prevailed and the roll call was nade. All of the members voted for Mr. Eng-thankful to my friends for their expressions of sympathy in my trouble.

I appreciate the kind feeling towards myself of those who censure chamberlin, Johnson & Co, but say to them that I fear that they have allowed their sympathy for me to cloud their judgment. I know that all the house of Chamberlin, Johnson & Co, appreciated and loved my boy, and if they made a mistake in sending him to de the work that resulted in his death, it was a mistake that would have been made by a large majority of you under the same circumstances, and while it has been a great sorrow to them because of the love they bore my boy.

I do not have any but the kindest feelings for them. I can never forget their many acts of kindless to him and his brother, while he was living, and specially do I feel kindly towards them for their attention and kindness to him and myself while he was suffering and since his death, and ask, se a kindness to myself, that all expressions of censure cease, at least where they will come to my ears.

AN IMPORTANT MUSICAL EVENT. The Sternberg Concert Tonight at the Klimball House,

The third of the series of drawing room con certs, inaugurated by Constantin Sternberg, will take place tonight in the beaut ful ball room of the Kimball house, under the kind patronage of the following society ladies:

Mrs. General Gordon,
Mrs. Livingston Mins,
Mrs. J. Thompson,
Mrs. Olive Fuller,
Mrs. H. T. Inman,
Mrs. J. W. Ballard.

The genial presence of these ladies and their friends will cause it to be one of the most agreeable social events, in addition to its being quite the most brilliant musical one, of the season.

These concerts have been established on the same lines as those which, for some time, have been so popular in the leading musical and fashionable circles of London, Paris, Berlin, Dresden, New York, Boston, etc., etc., and to judge by the enthusiastic praise of those who were fortunate enough to be present at the Atlanta Fernals instienthusiastic praise of those who were fortunate emough to be present at the Atianta Female institute on the occasions of the two first concerts, they bid fair to rival in popularity those we have mentioned. That Mr. Steruberg has been able to call forth in the short time he is amongst us so wide an interest in music of the highest order, speaks as well for the appreciation and musical knowledge of our citizens set does for the eventlence of his own swiscalet.

as it does for the excellence of his own musical attainments. To an execution of the most brilliant description, he adds a thorough—indeed, we might say a profound—knowledge of his art, and these taken in combination with his energy and great originality, make him an acquisition to be prized in any community. We have no hesitation in expressing our conviction that should he decide to permanently reside here, and see meaning as to combine the local profestainments. To an execution of the most brilliant and can manage so to combine the local profes-sional and amateur talent, (of which Atlanta is already not a little proud.) that all can work to-gether harmoniously for the same end, it will not be long before our city is known throughout the length and breadth of the land, as well for her musical culture, as for her business energy and phenomenal progress in other ways.

As a small mark of the appreciation in which

Mr. Sternberg is held in the musical world of New York, we may mention that Messrs. Knabe telegraphed their agents, Messrs. Phillips & Crew, to place at his disposal for this concert two of their inest concert grand pianos, free of expense.

The programme for tonight will, we understand. The programme for tonight will, we understand, ter, Robert Schumann, and is one to delight the nearts of all lovers of "the divine art." The Span hearts of all lovers of "the divine art." The Spanische Lieder Spicl-Spanish Vandville-which occupies the second half of the program will, without doubt, prove a feature of special interest, inasmuch as this will be the first time this exquisite conception is heard here in public in its entirety. In order to assist in continuing the interest throughout the entire number (10) of vocal parts, Mr. Sternburg conceived the happy idea of waveling them into a stor. This doub. idea of weaving them into a story. This, doub ites the composer had intended doing himself, but his madness and early death prevented. The task has been very cleverly accomplished by one of Atlanta's fairest and most talented young ladies. the poem she has written will be read during the performance by Miss Mary Withers, whose histonic gitts are well and favorably known to a large circle of friends and admirers.

As usual, Mr. Sternberg will be assisted by Mrs. Werner and Mrs. Sternberg, whose voices should be heard to great advantage in the larger hall. Messrs. Freyer and Bischoff will occupy their accustomed seats on the platform, and, with the assistance of Mr. A. I. Wurm and Mr. Ad. F. Wurm, will, under the leadership of Mr. Sternberg at the plane, perform the well known quintette in E flat of 44, one of the most perfect concerted pieces ever written. Mr. Sternberg, assisted by Mrs. Summer Salter, will play the Andante con variazioni for two pianos. Mr. Alex, Smith (tenor) and Mr. Summer Salter (basso) will, with Mrs. Werner and Mrs. Sternberg, sustain the necessary parts in the Lieder Spiel.

We strongly recommend all who can avail themselves of the opportunity not to miss so intellectual and enjoyable a treat. For particulars as to tickets, see our advertising

TWO MEN MISSING.

Two Negroes Go Fishing in the Chattahoo chee and Never Return. Chattahoochee river farmers, near Mr. James Wilson's plantation, are now considerably ex-ercised over the rather mysterious disappear-ance of two negromen well known through at that portion of the county.

The two men are Hamp Pallmore and John

On Saturday last Pallmore and Holland left the former's hone to go to the river to set some fish baskets. The river was only a few miles away, and when the negroes drove off in an ox cart promised to return in an hour or two. After reaching the river they tied their oxen to a tree and began setting their baskets. When dark came Pallmore's family began to grow uneasy. His absence, however, was accounted for later in the night by the suggestion from some member of the family that he had gone to Holland's home to remain through the night. Pallmore has been preaching in the neighborhood and was to have occupied his pulpit Sunday. On that morning the negrees in the neighborhood gathered at the church but Psl more failed to arrive. Finally his family came up and in a short while his absence from home through the previous night was made known. people reached the church Holland's folks came up. From them it was ascertained that Holland had not been home during the night but that his people were not uneasy, thinking that he was at Pallmore's. The comparison of information aroused fears in the minds of the people about the church. ard a party at once started for the river. The banks were searched and in-time the ox-cart and team were found, but no trace of the two men could be secured. The country was care men could be secured. The country was carefully searched, but without any good. The searching party finally came to the conclusion that the two men had been drowned, and the river was dragged. All day Sunday the search was carried on in water and out of water, but nothing could be ascertained. Yesterday the search was continued with the same result.

MRS. BELCHER AGAIN.

THE LADY CREATES QUITE A SEN-SATION AT THE HOME.

Her Mother Calls At the Home to See Her--An Effec-ing Meeting Ensues-Mrs. Belober Positively Refuses to Resum to Her Husband's House--A Rumor of her Suicide.

Mrs. Belcher, who left her home, 308 Formwaldt street, Friday, and asked the protection -from her husband-of the police department Sunday, added another feature to her sensational episode yesterday by creating the impression that she had attempted to commit

Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Belcher applied to Chief Connolly for protection she was taken to the Benevolent home in Waverly place, and surrendered to the special care of Mrs. Irby, the matron. Early yesterday morning a lady called at police headquarters and securing an interview with Chief Connolly, stated that she was Mrs. Belcher's mother. The gave her name as Mrs. Handy, and asked the chief to permit her to see her daughter. Mrs. Handy stated that she wanted to bring about a reconciliation if possible, and appeared to be greatly distressed. Chief Conpelly could see no reason for refusing Mrs. appeared to be greatly distressed. Canel Con-nolly could see no reason for refusing Mrs. Handy's request, and went with her to the home. The meeting between the mother and daughter was quite affecting. They embraced one another, and after a cry began talking. The mother used every argument in her power to induce her daughter to return to her home, but she restitively refused to do so asserting but she positively refused to do so, asserting that she could not stand her husband's illtreatment. Mrs. Belcher went so far as to de-clare that she would kill herself before she would go back to her husband. She consented, however, to remain at the home for a short n e. Later in the day another lady, a friend of Mrs. Belcher, called at the home and begged the lady to return to her home. The lady was a part cular friend of Mrs. Belcher and the conversation between them was such as friends only indulge in. The lady, however, was una-ble to induce Mrs. Belcher to change her mind. Scen after the lady left Mrs. Belcher entered Mrs. Irby's room and sat down. She appeared Mrs. Iroy s room and sat down. She appeared to be in a deep study, and thinking that her guest would like to be alone, the matron walked out of the room. In a short time some one enterpd the room and discovered Mrs. Belcher lying upon a lounge in an insensible condition. The alarm was given and Mrs. Irby was quickly beside the woman. At first Mrs. Irby hought her charge was feigning insanshilite. thought her charge was feigning insensibility. She caught her by the nose so as to prevent breathing, and for a minute waited to see the result. The woman did not appear to be at all conscious of what was going on, and in a short time Mrs Irby became alarmed. She had heard Mrs. Belcher threaten to kill her-self, and, fearing that she had attempted to carry out her threat, Mrs. Irby sent a messenger to police headquarters informing Chief Connolly that Mrs. Belcher had tied to commit suicide. The chief sent for physicians, and in a few minutes Dr. Van Goidtsnoven was at the home. The doctor experienced considerable trouble in producing consciousness, but finally succeeded. He could not determine in his mind whether Mrs.

not determine in his mind whether Mrs. Beleher had taken an opiate or not. As soon as the lady was able to talk, however, she affirmed most positively that she had not taken anything to kill herself.

Mrs. Irby, the matron of the home, has had more experience with persons in trouble than any one in town and is generally considered authority touching such cases as the one she now has in hand. She was asked yesterday what she thought of the case.

"Why," said she. "I hardly know yet what I think about it. Mrs. Belcher is a woman of most excellent sense. She is, I am satisfied, a thoroughly good woman, and is doing just what she thinks is right; but whether she is right or not in leaving her husband I cannot right or not in leaving her husband I cannot

"Will she go back?" "If think not. If she does I will be astonished, because she has been so firm in her refusal to go back. There is some serious trouble between her husband and herself—something, I think, she has never made known to any one She is greatly distressed now, but I hope by giving her close attention to bring her around all right."

all right."
A sensational feature will probably be added to Mrs. Belcher's descrtion of her home today.
Mrs. Belcher was a member of Pierce's chapel and has always been considered a Christian lady. Sometime ago a lady living near Mrs. Belcher's home made a remark about her. The lady was also a member of the same church and the remark led to a trouble in became which the church became in-volved, but nothing was done until yesterday. By many of Mrs. Belcher's friends the remark made by her neighbor is from her home. On yesterday the board of stewards of the church met, in accordance with an agreement entered into on Sunday, and decided to give the matter a careful, full and thorough investigation. The board took no further action yesterday, and will meet again Belcher has not been able to see his wife yet.
